I don't think my husband would be so broad-minded (or lion-hearted) if I stepped out on him.
So far I've been 100 per cent faithful but it's becoming increasingly difficult not to wink back—if you know what I mean. Please help—
A POLARIS WIFE
Dear Wife: To cheat or not to cheat—that is the question which faces almost all married people at one time or another. Disenchantment, or in some cases plain boredom, causes much of the straying.
Thousands of sad and sorry people have written to tell me they paid a dear price for what they had meant to be only a little fun. The ability to play it straight pays handsome dividends in long-term profits, my dear. This is what separates the girls from the women.

Dear Ann: I was disappointed in your all-out knock for dancing schools.

You said, "Take that 11-year-old out of that silly dancing school and put him in a Y.M.C.A. swimming class."

Just because the kids got into a kissing game at a party for the dancing class was no reason to bum-rap the school. Where were the parents when this foolishness was going on? It is their fault, not the fault of the dancing school.

Please set the record straight. Thank you.—STILL BOILING

Dear Boiling: Dancing is fun, lovely, beautiful, esthetic, healthy, and I do it myself. But I am NOT in my self of 11-year-old boys taking lessons in ballroom dancing. It puts youngsters in an adult type of setting which is unnatural.

You are right, however, in saying the parents and not the school were to blame for that "Heaven or Hell" game. Those kids should not have been without adult supervision.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Is that REALLY the same woman?
It is. Same dress, earrings and hair-do, too...but the pictures of this 43-year-old housewife* were taken 6 months apart.
What made the big difference? What firming those sagging contours that detracted from an otherwise pretty face? What made her look so much younger that it's hard to believe this is the same woman?
She didn't have her face lifted, or experience any significant weight change. What she did do was use the Zeigler Facial Exerciser...regularly, faithfully.
The Zeigler Facial Exerciser is a remarkable electronic unit that helps to stimulate facial circulation...gently exercises facial muscles that are beginning to sag as a result of normal processes of aging.
